

PLAN FINANCES FOR EXPOSITION

Directors of Live Stock Exchange Will Hold Meeting Today.

REPORT ON IOWA FAIR

Horse Races Suggested as Established Features in Exposition.

A plan for financing the Tulsa Live Stock & Industrial exposition will probably be decided today at the meeting of the board of directors of the live stock exchange, which will convene at 2 o'clock this afternoon. At the weekly meeting yesterday noon, directors of the exchange discussed the plan for the exposition and the board of directors in any case they may pursue in raising the necessary funds.

This action was taken by members of the exchange after hearing a report of the Iowa state fair from members who went from Tulsa in the summer and after M. C. Hale, who declared the three-day trip was one of the most interesting of his life, and asked that the board be taken immediately into consideration for building the exposition.

Hale declared the movement would not be successful unless a large body of interested men get together and start raising money. He said that the Iowa fair was a systematic and thorough manner. "We ought to get at least 500 men to get out and work. It would be the biggest investment. Tulsa ever made it every business house in the city would come until this money is raised," he declared.

Those who spoke the trip to Des Moines spent much time inquiring as to what benefits had been derived by the state fair. They found that it is regarded as the most important event in that state. The annual attendance is around 500,000, and the money spent in the fair is about $1,000,000.

It is regarded as the greatest factor in Iowa for building up the great herds of prize-winning livestock raised there, and for the wonderful growth of agriculture and crop-improving.

Clarence H. Douglas, managing director of the Chamber of Commerce, in making a brief report of the trip, said he was convinced that the fair would be successful without betting.

"Now I know I was wrong. It was a revelation to see the interest in those races. They were the same as a vaudeville stunt. People watched them because they were interesting, and not because they offered opportunities for betting."

Des Moines has a half-mile track. The daily attendance at the races is between 25,000 and 50,000, and at the entire fair, about 500,000. Many people spend their vacations visiting the fair instead of going to a summer resort, Douglas said.

As planned now, at least a part of Tulsa's project would be operated nine months out of the year. This would be mostly the swimming pool and dancing pavilion.

This project does not represent an expense. Mr. Hale declared yesterday. "It is the greatest investment Tulsa as individuals could make. Every man here ought to own at least a share of stock."

Cyrus S. Avery, farmer-soil man, suggested that a home-building project be combined with the exposition. It was unanimously agreed that the exposition will materially increase Tulsa's population and Mr. Avery made his suggestion, which, if adopted, would provide many homes for these new people near the exposition grounds.

This might be added later, it was said, but at present the chief concern is to get the exposition itself properly financed and under way.

The officers and directors of the exposition are: John T. Kramer, president; W. A. Vandever, vice president; Geo. H. Hecomb, secretary and general manager; W. M. Baker, treasurer; M. C. Hale, L. E. Abbott, W. E. Brown, E. P. Harwell, H. C. Barnard, Geo. Davis, Otto E. Upp, E. W. Sinclair, W. E. Lewis, Fred Shaw, Jake Easton, Harry H. Rogers, directors.

It was suggested yesterday at the Chamber of Commerce luncheon that there be a concerted campaign for perhaps one week in which to raise the money for the exposition. This is to be decided upon by the exposition directors today.

The Tulsa-to-Canada Tourists Return

"The Swede," suspected of having designs of citizenship of Canada.

J. Burr Gibbons

Alias "buggy" Gibbons believed to be wanted in several places.

Shelly Tracy

Alias "Shellgame Tracy," also a suspect.

By wireless late last night came word that the Knights of Liberty had grabbed four suspicious looking characters in the northern suburbs of the city. A staff artist was rushed to the scene through The World's special pneumatic tube, and the accompanying pictures is the result. The party was rescued from the Knights of Liberty, who, it seems, were only holding them under prospect of a ransom, and by using our own specially contrived detector, invented by L. H. Long, they were discovered to be a quartet of Tulsa citizens who have been disturbing the peace and quietude of northern summer resorts with the screaming honks of a Tulsa-made car, known to the trade as the "Tulsa Four."

Two weeks ago the party left Tulsa on high, and at the time of going to press our telegraph indicated they were coming home on low. So far as can be learned the pleasure of the trip was not interrupted by any didos on the part of the car, but from time to time disturbing stories have drifted in of the sensation this Tulsa four has created in the many resorts and cities visited. Look them over as here depicted by our painstaking artist, who belongs to the school of art which believes that nature should furnish her own colors, and it will not be hard for you to believe all we have heard.
